Themes of the parallel dialogue sessions (5 June, 11.30-13.00)

1. Values and standards for restorative justice (facilitated by Tim Chapman and Arne Kinnunen)
 - This session emphasises the importance of values and standards for assuring quality in restorative justice practices. Attention will be given to how to deal with the tendency of the system to intrude and dominate the restorative space.
2. Different practice models (facilitated by Lars Otto Justad and Patrizia Patrizi)
 - This session will focus on different practice models, i.e. mediation, conferencing and circles, with the aim to look at how to expand available services (mostly on mediation) to other restorative practices.
3. Access to restorative justice and victims' participation (facilitated by Bart Claes and TBC)
 - This session will focus on the type of information given to victims and offenders to propose a restorative justice process, but also on the timing, frequency, source of the offer made. Attention is mostly given to the general offer of restorative justice and the specific participation of victims, but also to the possibility for self-referrals.
4. Restorative justice for children and adolescents (facilitated by Annemieke Wolthuis and Brunilda Pali)
 - This session will look at practices to encourage children and adolescents to engage in a restorative justice process, focusing on the type of language to be used and the safeguards to protect their vulnerabilities.
5. Cooperating with criminal justice authorities (facilitated by Nacho Martinez and Ian Marder)
 - This session will focus on the problematic of lack of awareness or understanding about restorative justice within criminal justice professionals and the importance of this for referring cases to the restorative justice services.
6. Training of restorative justice facilitators (facilitated by Alberto Olalde and Emanuela Biffi)
 - This session focuses on different training models for facilitators in victim-offender mediation, conferences and circles, looking at what exercises and practices are helpful to gain confidence and experience for the field.
7. Support and supervision of restorative justice facilitators (facilitated by Raul Calvo and Edit Törzs)
 - This session will focus on existing models for supporting and supervising facilitators before, during and after a restorative justice encounter takes place, looking also at practices for following up cases once the process is over.
8. Databases of restorative justice services (facilitated by Gemma Varona and Katerina Soulou)
 - This session will focus on quantitative and qualitative data collection of restorative justice cases, helpful to evaluate, compare and improve services and specific programmes.

In Spanish:

9. The restorative justice encounter – in Spanish (facilitated by Esther Pascual and Laura Hein)

- This session will focus on the preparation phase and actual encounter between all parties engaging in a restorative justice process, looking in detail at the questions to be answered and measures to be taken to facilitate the encounter.
10. The Basque experience on restorative juvenile justice – in Spanish (facilitated by the head of the juvenile justice service)
- This session wishes to create the space for sharing the experience on the use of RJ in juvenile justice settings in the Basque country and for sharing feedback and proposals for future projects. The language of the session is Spanish.
